Hogwarts is no longer a safe haven for students. Dumbledore is more intent than ever on preparing Harry for a battle with Voldemort. Meanwhile love may be in the air, but tragedy looms, and Hogwarts may never be the same again. I say this because this game is about making potions, adding and mixing a lot of ingredients to get the beverage!

Well, maybe I have been harsh on this Potter games collection: Now that I have played and finished the six games existing so far, I tried other games and their installations don't last the first five minutes of play because of their complicated controls, impossible timed missions. To be frank I never met this in any Potter games so they must be praised for their accessibility!

With this last one, I must say that's a good surprise: from the first game, a long path has been done and the game is completely different. Now, the characters and locations are virtual captures (except Hermione that I don't recognize) and you can live by yourself those magic adventures! It's similar to the fifth game but improved: now, the repetitive walks can turn into runs, the footprints are left for Gryffondor ghost (good idea!) and the tasks are fun: potions, quidditch and spells. It's is very easy so you can enjoy the game and don't bother after collecting shields or whatever.

When I remember the painful flying sessions in game one or three, it's really a pleasure to fly now! And at least, you can listen to the John Williams's theme that has been waited for 5 games to come!

Finally, all is well that ends well. It's a pity the developers get a bit lost with game 3 and 4 and we are still waiting for more input from the movies (pictures, score)

Soon, the Lego game arrives as well as the last two movies / games. Will I play them ? Well, it depends of what the web will offer I think . Hogwarts is no longer a safe haven for students. Dumbledore is more intent than ever on preparing Harry for a battle with Voldemort. Meanwhile love may be in the air, but tragedy looms, and Hogwarts may never be the same again. Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince might not be a great film but it is a great game and although it's easy as many other critics said in their reviews it's still a fun game you go around Hogwarts doing missions or talking to other characters such as Hermione and Ron plus the voice acting is really good and although it's not the original actors they still do an impressive job. Also once you get to battle Bellatrix or Malfoy it's quite exciting too it's easy sure but still very thrilling to play and the controls are pretty easy to learn once you go around the School you also have many different soundtracks playing in the background that gives a smooth feeling to the game and makes you relax a bit. My only issue was just the way too many quidditch matches and although the potions are quite fun to play they do get kinda annoying sometimes but overall great Harry Potter game especially when the movie was disappointing. a5c7b9f00b
